

There are law firms & there's Bird & Bird

Technology and data have revolutionised the way the modern world operates. The legal and commercial implications are complex and rapidly-evolving – and impact every organisation. Bird & Bird has built a stellar global reputation for providing sophisticated, pragmatic advice to companies which are shaping the world's digital future.

Bird & Bird's rapidly growing Tech & Comms, Media and Data team is looking to recruit a junior associate in Brussels. Join us in our mission to support our technology and data-driven clients by providing smart, creative legal advice.

By providing top-tier leading advice and assistance in the core areas of the practice:

- General commercial matters, with a particular focus on IT and e-commerce contracts as well as technology licensing;
- Copyright related questions with a particular focus on IT and Media;
- Telecommunications and IT, as well as compliance aspects of disruptive products and services such as cloud computing, big data, Internet of Things and AI;
- Data protection compliance projects, international transfers of data, security breaches and all aspects of online data protection.

To be successful, you can count on the firm's support to:

- Take on responsibility from day one, enjoying challenging work with sophisticated clients in high-technology areas;
- Handle complex national and cross-border matters, with a strong focus on transactional contentious matters in front of both national courts and the European Court of Justice;
- Develop excellent client relationships;
- Build your career in the firm, developing your legal, business and interpersonal skills through training and feedback from top-notch practitioners;
- Be actively involved in marketing and business development initiatives in a truly international firm;
- Take part in various social activities and events of our Brussels office and internationally.
